

FOREIGN LABOR CERTIFICATION TRAVEL TRAILERS/CAMPERS OCCUPANCY

The Foreign Labor Certification (FLC) programs permit U.S. employers to hire foreign workers on a temporary or permanent basis to fill jobs essential to the U.S. economy. For more information on the programs, visit the DLR website at dlr.sd.gov/workforce_services/foreign_labor/default.aspx

The H-2A labor certification program establishes a means for agricultural employers who anticipate a shortage of domestic workers to bring nonimmigrant foreign workers to the U.S. to perform agricultural labor or services of a temporary or seasonal nature. Visit dlr.sd.gov/workforce_services/foreign_labor/h2a.aspx for more information.

It is the employer's responsibility to provide housing. For more information, visit dlr.sd.gov/workforce_services/foreign_labor/h2a.aspx#housing

REQUIREMENTS

Unless the unit is range housing for livestock herding, travel trailers use the same rules as regular housing. Guidance on was provided in a Standard Interpretation letter from the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) dated June 1991.

For the purposes of enforcing the standard, each entire mobile housing unit is to be one room. The number of employees housed in the mobile units, as with fixed or permanent units, must be based on the 100 square feet per person formula for OSHA regulations and 60 square feet per person for ETA regulations.

Range Housing

Range housing for livestock herding is to follow the number of beds available in unit for occupancy, given that all other standards are in place.

Documenting Square Footage

DLR staff should include the measurements of length/width and total square in the DLR 338 on the description line. Bump-outs should be included in the total square footage.
